IAN GOODENOUGH

Ian Goodenough joined our firm on 8 March 1993 having completed his Secondary Education. He joined as a Trainee Accountant with the intention of completing his Bachelor of Commerce Degree on a part-time basis.

In the 28 months that Ian has been with the firm he has gained experience, firstly in the Audit Division and more recently in the Business Services Division where he has been responsible for completing income tax returns and financial statements for a variety of clients as well as attending to some administration functions within the Division.

Ian has always displayed a responsible attitude and has carried out all tasks assigned to him to the best of his ability. Ian is a young man of good character and integrity who has a keen desire to succeed.

Ian has decided to leave us of his own accord to pursue a career outside the profession. We wish him every success in the future.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Mr Ian Goodenough of 43 Clarecastle Retreat, Mindarie is well known to me and I write in support of his application for a post-Masters scholarship/research fellowship to study International Business.

Mr Goodenough's past academic achievements include a Bachelor of Commerce, Certificate in Justice Studies from the School of Law at Murdoch University, an Advanced Diploma of Business Management. In addition, he will complete a Master of Business Administration at the end of this year.

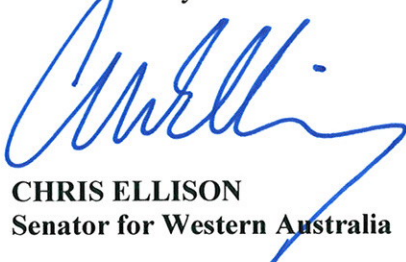

Mr Goodenough is Chairman of the Audit Committee for the City of Wanneroo where he has been a councillor since 1999. He is a Justice of the Peace and in his role as councillor, he is member of a number of committees and working groups, as well as being a conscientious and committed community worker.

I first met Mr Goodenough some 5 years ago through his interest in politics. More recently he provided valuable assistance to the Hon Judi Moylan MP and myself in organising a Community Forum to discuss a number of areas covered by my portfolio as Minister for Justice and Customs.

Mr Goodenough is a person who displays fine character qualities and this was recently recognised when he was presented with a Commonwealth of Australia Centenary Medal in recognition of his service to local government, education, charitable organisations and the community.

I believe Mr Goodenough's practical interest in public policy and commerce make him an excellent candidate to study trade relations between Australia and the United States. I have no doubt that he has the understanding and commitment to succeed in his endeavours and I wish him every success.

Yours sincerely

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

I am pleased to provide a reference for Mr Ian Reginald Goodenough of 43 Clarecastle Retreat, Mindarie in support of his application for a post-Masters scholarship/research fellowship to study International Business.

I have known Ian for three years and have been privileged to work with him in his capacity as a councillor representing residents in the Coastal Ward in the City of Wanneroo. During this time I have been impressed by the keen interest shown by Ian in public policy and political processes, particularly in respect to international trade and business enterprise.

Ian was elected in 1999 to the City of Wanneroo Council. He is a member of a number of important committees and working groups and is Chairman of the Audit Committee for the City of Wanneroo.

Several City of Wanneroo Wards fall within the electorate of Pearce and I work closely with Councillor Goodenough to represent the interest of our constituency. Ian has demonstrated excellent diplomatic and negotiation skills in his relationships with the constituency he represents as a local government councillor and is a very conscientious and committed community worker.

As well as his dedicated service to local government, Ian is involved in numerous community groups and clubs and holds membership of professional organisations. He is a Justice of the Peace and in 2003 was the recipient of a Commonwealth of Australia, Centenary Medal presented by the Governor General in recognition of his service to local government, education, charitable organisations and the community.

Ian has demonstrated a keenness for study and has completed a Bachelor of Commerce, Certificate in Justice Studies from the School of Law at Murdoch University, an Advanced Diploma of Business Management and will complete a Master of Business Administration at the end of this year. His past academic achievements and his practical interest in public policy and commerce make him an ideal candidate for further study.

Ian has often accompanied me during my political campaigns when his ability to relate to people at all levels has been a great asset to me. He is totally reliable and I have found him to be a person of integrity.

I would be pleased to supplement this reference if required.

I wish Ian every success in his future endeavours and have great pleasure in supporting his application for a scholarship/research fellowship to study trade relations between Australia and the United States.
